2012-13

About

Body of Evidence, 2012-13 is a series of photographs, which was realized as a reflection on the strange ways in which humans try to grab his memory through the appropriation of objects and where the image is the photographic record of that evidence.

The character of objects is what makes this series unique. Originally these objects were part of privately owned and were stolen like a kind of souvenir. In this action of reappropriation, the stories are woven in the individual memory.

In some objects can be seen the logo company, which refers to the place from which they were taken, such as airplanes, hotels, restaurants, etc. and range from an ashtray to the most extravagant, fragments of celluloid film or a part of an Italian train.
